

SILVER LINING

Darkness had consumed every fiber of my being
Beautiful summer days turned into dark, harsh winter nights
I became numb to the pain
Or at least this is what I thought
I hated those evil people that surrounded me
They preached the words of God
But they were as evil as the devil
Without any reason or emotion
Discrimination and hate became highly contagious
I even hated myself
Why should I feel this kind of animosity?
Subjecting myself to that kind of abuse
But why should I be ashamed of who I am
Agony helps us to make changes
Anguish pushes us to let go
I'm finally free from those hypocritical people
I'm finally free from those immoral people
The silver lining has finally surfaced
I love who I am
This is how God made me
I love what I see and feel
I see beautiful days and glorious nights
I definitely see the silver lining
